PRIVILEGED INSTRUCTIONS

Ministry of Foreign Affairs
REPUBLIC OF KAZAKHSTAN

Қазақстан Республикасы Сыртқы істер министрлігі Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Republic of Kazakhstan

Privileged Instructions

Fundamental Principles

- Kazakhstan's primary Red Line is that no nation will be allowed to dictate to us how and with whom we may trade, including for oil, natural gas, mineral resources, or even for water. The delegation is directed to remind any delegation that even suggests we give up control over our natural resources that national sovereignty is of paramount importance to every nation in attendance, and that includes us.
- Kazakhstan is also forging ahead with broader relations outside the region, to include diplomatic, economic, and even military ties, and these decisions are solely the purview of the people and our government. Should any nation among the delegations suggest we subordinate ourselves to the wishes of that nation, the delegation is directed to immediately cut off discussions with that delegation, as it would be crossing a Red Line, and to report back to the Foreign Minister immediately and then await guidance on how to proceed.

Principle Negotiation Positions

These positions are to be presented openly and publicly to all attendees. However, the delegation should pursue the specific items outlined below, either bilaterally or multilaterally, and should ensure Kazakhstan's red lines are not crossed in any diplomatic agreements that might be presented, discussed, or aggressively pursued.

- We are open to formal dialogue regarding natural resources across Central Asia and is interested in working collaboratively with our neighboring nations to find optimal ways to use those resources to better the lives of all people in the region.
- We support economic integration and is open to proposals from neighboring nations regarding lowering trade barriers, increasing export of Kazakh-made products (agricultural products, minerals, oil, and natural gas), and increasing imports from all nations in the region interested in free trade.

These positions are to be held by the Kazakh delegation and should not be openly communicated except as outlined below.

- Our security is imperative. Hence, negotiation of security arrangements that support Kazakhstan's inherent right to self-defense and maintenance of territorial integrity will be entertained. The delegation does not have authority to enter into binding agreements in this regard, but exploring possible security arrangements and broad points that might be part of such agreements acquired during the negotiations is strongly encouraged.
- We will not enter any intelligence sharing agreements with any nation attending the summit. However, if the PRC is willing to share intelligence on Tajikistan, Turkmenistan, or Kyrgyzstan, further dialogue on these points would be of interest. No discussions of these possibilities will take place except in bilateral discussions. This is a Red Line. No other nations can know about this initiative.

- An intelligence sharing arrangement is also desired with the Indian Republic, and the delegation is, again, reminded to only discuss this possibility in bilateral sessions, and then only between the heads of delegation. We are particularly interested in sharing intelligence on diplomatic, economic, and security initiatives by the People's Republic of China throughout the Central Asian region.

Delegation Instructions

Ensure periodic reports, requests for further guidance, or clarifications to the instructions herein are submitted to the office of the Foreign Minister.

General: The delegation will work closely with and support the UN Special Representative of the Secretary-General's efforts to mediate this crisis. The delegation is directed to collect all available information about the negotiating positions of the other countries at the summit. Where possible, ascertain the other nation's flexible areas and try to bend the countries toward agreeing to Kazakh interests. The end goal of this summit for Kazakhstan is to reduce tensions and to return the region to the status quo regarding border demarcations, and to enhance the protection of Kazakhstan's water resources.

KYRGYZSTAN

The Kyrgyz Republic appears to be changing their understanding of their role in the Collective Security Treaty Organization (CSTO). In the recent border confrontations between Tajikistan and Kyrgyzstan, Russia failed to intervene or even engage in any meaningful manner. This has left Kyrgyzstan in a bind, and they have demonstrated their frustrations with the Russian Federation and the CSTO by refusing to participate in scheduled CSTO exercises and multilateral training. While our Ministry of Defense is perplexed by Kyrgyz intransigence, this also opens possibilities for a Kyrgyz-Uzbek-Kazakh security relationship and the delegation is directed to quietly explore this possibility with the Kyrgyz delegation. The delegation is directed to refrain from openly supporting any positions on the border demarcation question, or the water resources challenges, in multilateral talks. However, in private, bilateral discussions with the Kyrgyz delegation, the delegation should seek to understand every aspect of the Kyrgyz position. Report findings back to the Foreign Ministry immediately and await further instructions on negotiating positions. Finally, Kyrgyzstan is the logical starting point for a major branch of the Middle Corridor between China and Europe, principally for rail and major road networks. The delegation is directed to offer up this possibility in trilateral negotiations with the PRC and the Kyrgyz delegation. Chinese FDI would be welcome, and jobs would go to Kyrgyz and Kazakh construction companies and workers, although Chinese technical expertise for supervisory roles would be acceptable.

TAJIKISTAN

Tajikistan has been a stalwart member of the CSTO, but they, too, are considering leaving the arrangement. The Foreign Minister believes Tajikistan and Kyrgyzstan will be the two most challenging delegations at this summit. Most of the border clashes and contests over water resources have been between these two members of the CSTO. Russian leadership concerning internal security between CSTO members has been woefully absent, thus creating an opening for us to mollify both Tajikistan's and Kyrgyzstan's concerns for mutually respectful dialogue and final resolution on these two issues. As the delegation is to be openly supportive of an agreement for both border alignment and water resource management, the delegation is directed to work bilaterally and multilaterally with the Tajik delegation to find possible areas of agreement. No final agreement should be reached by the delegation at this summit. Rather, determine possible areas of agreement for follow-on discussions that may be led by the Foreign Minister in partnership with just the Central Asian nations. Finally, Tajikistan has become one of the largest beneficiaries of the PRC's Belt and Road Initiative investments in the region. Tajikistan recently agreed to a $500 million (US) dollar investment deal with PRC investors for massive solar fields to generate power to be sent back to China's western provinces. The delegation is directed to learn more about this trade deal from the Tajik delegation and to ascertain if Tajikistan is interested in additional investment along these lines in partnership with us.

UZBEKISTAN

Uzbekistan is a strong economic partner for Kazakhstan. The delegation is reminded to ensure this relationship is furthered throughout the summit. The delegation is authorized to discuss enhancing the already robust trade agreements in place today, and to foster expansion of Uzbek exports of oil, natural gas, minerals, metals, and any other commodities or products through Kazakhstan to the western Chinese provinces. Pipelines, both repairs to old lines and new pipelines, maintained or built in partnership with Uzbekistan, the Russian Federation, and with the PRC, are desired. Projects surrounding enhanced rail networks to speed freight and people across the region are also of interest to us. Uzbekistan's partnership in this endeavor is desired and would be mutually beneficial for both nations. Finally, we are considering withdrawing from the CSTO following Armenia's decision to freeze membership. The delegation is authorized to explore the possibility of a mutual defense agreement with Uzbekistan to bolster security for both nations. The final details would need to be negotiated between the ministries of foreign affairs and defense but opening dialogue with the Uzbek delegation at this summit, in bilateral-only discussions, would be beneficial to the long-term objective.

RUSSIA

The Russian Federation is a weakening power, despite being the security guarantor for the CSTO. The delegation is directed to thank the Russian delegation for Russia's assistance in 2022 during the fuel crisis and demonstrations but decline any discussions about expanding or enhancing either the CSTO or any other security arrangements with the Russian Federation. The delegation is also directed to politely thank the Russian delegation if they offer arms purchasing deals, but we are not interested in such arrangements currently. Gather all information available from the Russians regarding any suggestions regarding the CSTO, or arms offers, and report back to the Foreign Minister immediately. We are, on the other hand, interested in further expanding and enhancing economic ties with Russia, but only as equal partners. Lowering trade barriers, agreeing to labor standards, and identifying opportunities for cooperation in natural resource protection and conservation would all be desired. Finally, if the Russian delegation is willing to intercede on our behalf in opening bilateral discussions with the Indian delegation, such an outcome would be appreciated, and the delegation is directed to thank the Russian delegation if they foster such an opportunity.

PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC OF CHINA

The People's Republic of China has become of tantamount economic interest to us. Supplying the PRC with oil, gas, metals, and minerals would spur economic expansion and help to improve our opportunities. The delegation is directed to seek a framework for long-term trade agreements with the PRC delegation, but do not finalize any such agreements. Also, ensure the bilateral-only talks with China in this regard do not include any agreement to accept PRC export bank loans for Chinese infrastructure projects. Kazakh citizens will carry out all construction on all projects linked to the PRC's Belt and Road Initiative (BRI) that may originate in Kazakhstan. The delegation is directed to seek information regarding the PRC's next phases in the BRI as it pertains to Tajikistan, Kyrgyzstan, and Uzbekistan. The China-Kyrgyzstan-Uzbekistan railway project appears to be a great success, and a blueprint for future multinational projects in which Kazakhstan may participate. Our security services are also interested in acquiring information on Tajik and Kyrgyz threats to our national security interests. If the PRC delegation seems amenable to discussing the sharing of intelligence in this regard through a formal agreement, the framework for such an agreement may be explored, but make no final commitments. Kazakhstan is particularly interested in extremism, separatist movements, and any direct threats to Kazakhstan's national security. Finally, we are ready to upgrade our military equipment. The PRC's People's Liberation Army has become a formidable combat force. The delegation is directed to explore possible arms deals between the PRC and us. Seek to understand what might be available, what the costs might be per unit (combat aircraft, transport aircraft, helicopters (both attack and utility), armor, armored vehicles, field artillery and rocket artillery, and communications equipment.

INDIA

India is the "odd man out" in this summit. They do not have a direct role in Central Asia, other than to be aligned and friendly with Tajikistan, and to be the primary target of the PRC's ire. While India and Russia remain friendly, the relationship centers on oil exports, which India needs to power their transportation sector. The delegation is directed to engage with the Indian delegation, both bilaterally and multilaterally for trade opportunities. The delegation should only engage India bilaterally for discussions linked to security topics. The delegation should be circumspect in recognizing or encouraging publicly made policy recommendations from the Indian delegation regarding the regional border disputes or alignment of water resources. Finally, Indian technical assistance for energy resources, agriculture, IT, or other sectors is always welcome. It would be ideal to begin framing possible economic cooperatives with India at this summit, to be followed up by our nations' respective foreign ministries finalizing any agreements. Finally, the delegation is directed to quietly explore arms purchasing agreements with the India delegation. Seek out what may be available and report back to the foreign ministry immediately.

There may be times when the Foreign Minister is unable to respond immediately to your communication. Under those circumstances, the delegation should proceed as directed in this guidance.
